

Safe & Sound Roofing – A Name That Says “Home”

Finding a roofer isn't as easy as just picking up the phone and making an appointment with just anyone. You want a reputable company that's focused on the details and ensuring that the roof they put on will last decades. Employee-owned Safe & Sound Roofing has a combined 60 years plus experience in the home improvement industry, helping homeowners with all their needs.

“Lately, we've been replacing more and more roofs that should have lasted another 20 years or more had they been installed correctly,” said John Polosky, Project Manager for Safe & Sound Roofing. “Safe & Sound was founded on the idea that we would only carry top-end manufacturers' products, such as Owens Corning and Atlas, and that we would install these products to exact manufacturers' specifications to ensure that our clients get the longest life out of their roof.”

Based upon their knowledge of the industry and the area, Safe & Sound chose these manufacturers because they provide longer, more comprehensive warranties, enough that home owners may qualify for a reduction on their homeowner's insurance, depending on their provider.

“Our shingles are more durable. We have some that can sustain wind gusts up to 150 mph,” Polosky said. “Also, with all the overhanging trees we have in the South Hills, we have shingles that have five times the copper content, which prevents the algae growth that shortens the life of shingles and causes those ugly brown or black streaks on your roof. Those shingles carry a lifetime warranty against algae.”

Polosky goes on to say, “We don't just want to be roofers, we want to be part of the community. We're based in the Baldwin/Whitehall area and all of us own homes in the South Hills. This is our home, and we want to take care of it.”

What's more, Safe & Sound Roofing's prices are all-inclusive, so there's never any question about what you'll be paying. Their estimate includes the roofing materials you choose, the labor, dumpster and clean up. Their four crews of seven men each completed over 600 roofs in the area in 2019, and they pride themselves on every aspect of the job they do.

“When we control the entire process, we can guarantee the job and the craftsmanship on that job,” Polosky said. “And no matter how great the roof looks, it's the clean-up that sticks with people. They want it to look like you were never there and definitely don't want a child or pet stepping on a nail a week after you leave, so we painstakingly clean the work area with magnetic sweepers to ensure we get every nail and treat our customers' homes like they were our own.”

In addition to all things roofs, Safe & Sound Roofing excels in helping homeowners with replacement windows, soffit, fascia, leaf guards, gutters and downspouts. Safe & Sound also installs siding for customers, and can even design and install decks as well.
